

I currently am the customer of one of the independent isp's that would be affected by a rules chane. I am a customer of the independent isp for the simple reason that BellSouth my former provider had and has such lousy customer service, that I switched to a provider that I could count on.

There is no way that every provider can run his own lines to a customer,think of the wiring disaster that would make of our neighborhoods. Giving any one company control of that will defininitly hurt me and alot of others I am sure.

Thank You,

Paul L Taylor
